The Salvation Army has become one of the institutions of this town and neighborhood, while its work literally reaches from pole to pole. It is, therefore, interesting to note that special efforts are to be made locally in connection with the Harvest Festival celebrations, to enlist sympathy and financial support for the many and varied enterprises of the army; a few statistics will help our readers to realize what they are.

The army carried on its general operations in fifty-two countries of the world, preaching a simple gospel of salvation for all in thirty languages. There are 15,007 officers and cadets wholly given up to the work, and no less than 44,418 local officers and 18,500 bandmen, who work hard without fee or reward and contribute very largely of their small means to the necessities of the war against sin and evil.

The work, which everybody, of no creed, must admire, is so vast as to be indescribable in a short paragraph; it embraces practical assistance for the starving and helpless, labor homes, farm colonies, institutions for deserted women and children, etc.

The special effort that is now being put forth in connection with the harvest festival, gives one and all an opportunity to help both in the local and national work. Kindly send to Captain Caroline McVeigh.
